Economy not as bad as it looks. "All it takes is faith," says Trudeau

VANCOUVER (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau's two-day swing through the British Columbia Interior this past week seems to leave little doubt that a full-fledged federal election campaign is approaching fast.

The prime minister, reportedly suffering from a sore back, lost no opportunity for testing the waters in his pre-election tour and ended it with some lively dancing in Vernon.

His only substantive speech came in Prince George on Thursday, when he told a receptive audience of about 1,000 that things are not as bad as they look for the economy. The economy isn't collapsing, and all it takes is faith to realize there are opportunities in the current slowdown, he said.

Environment Minister Len Marchand was at the community of Williams Lake Friday, arriving by government jet, to greet Trudeau. For a time, two of the sleek little jets sat at the little airport before Marchand's returned empty to Ottawa.

Normally, government aircraft are reserved for official government business.

OTHERS INTO ACT

Earlier, Sport Minister Iona Campagnolo and Justice Minister Ron Basford got into the act, accompanying Trudeau to Prince George welcoming ceremonies for the B.C. winter games.

And Liberal MP Jack Pearsall (Coast Chilcotin) was on hand to introduce the prime minister when he talked to about 300 residents of Williams Lake, once more praising them for their community spirit and recommending it as an example for the rest of the country.

But it took a Penticton high school student to put the question about when the next federal election, widely expected later this year, will actually come.

The prime minister first pretended annoyance that everyone asks when there will be an election, then said he didn't know.

"Normally, there would be an election this spring," he added. "But there has been no decision made to have one yet."

The last general election was in July, 1974.

LIKE CAMPAIGN

The campaign-style tour gave Trudeau plenty of chances for shaking hands and signing autographs. At Prince George, neater children demanded autographs, and at Penticton and Vernon Trudeau again made himself available to admiring voters.

He surprised his aides by deciding to attend a dance at Vernon, part of its winter carnival ceremonies, where he shook hands with dozens of pretty young beauty queen contestants before taking to the dance floor for an hour.

The Friday night visit to Vernon ended the tour and Trudeau returned to Ottawa Saturday.

But the trip left a sour taste in some reporters' mouths. Lumbering along behind the prime minister's jet in an aging DC-3, national reporters missed his arrival at Penticton and again at Vernon. In both cases, picketers were on hand protesting the province's 8½ per cent jobless rate.

The tour organizers were left red-faced in Vernon, after the prime minister gave a brief news conference for local reporters. Political advisors had neglected to tell Trudeau's press aides about the event, and as a result reporters who had travelled with the prime minister throughout the tour did not learn of the news conference until it was over.

The travelling reporters were prevented from individually questioning Trudeau in the two days, and he also had passed over his regular weekly news conference in Ottawa.

In Terrace Sunday

In Terrace Sunday evening, MP Iona Campagnolo told the HERALD she had been greatly impressed at the enthusiasm shown in Prince George by the 5,600 participants and the 1200 or so spectators waiting inside the auditorium who cheered lustily as the Prime Minister arrived. This, she felt, by no stretch of the imagination could have been "staged".

Campagnolo said it made her feel especially happy to be given the opportunity of announcing, at Prince George, that the 1981 NW BC Winter Games would be held at Prince Rupert — her "home town", as well as the 1980 Games at Williams Lake and the 1979 Games at Smithers.

Recreation Minister for B.C., Sam Bawlf's announcement that henceforth the Northern Winter Games would be considered as a Winter counterpart to the B.C. Summer Games, was, she felt, a very happy resolution to a situation that had threatened to conflict.

Because the Labour Minister John Munro has had to change his scheduled appearance at Kitimat from Tuesday to Monday, he will not be accompanied by Iona Campagnolo, who had a heavy schedule of engagements already lined up in Prince Rupert. She will complete these on Monday and then return to Terrace to address the regular meeting of the Northern Branch of Professional Engineers of B.C. at the Bavarian Inn, as previously announced. Sunday morning Ms. Campagnolo attended Mass at the Roman Catholic Church, was interviewed by local media reporters and camerapersons, and met with members of the constituency. Supposed to fly to Prince Rupert in the evening, as she left the Herald office she was met with the announcement that the scheduled aircraft would probably not be landing at Terrace for the second night in a row. Preparations were being made to go by automobile so she could keep her engagements in Rupert, an any event.

No More "Number Please"

Most telephone customers with numbers beginning with 635 and 638 will eventually be able to make use of an automatic number identification service on direct dialed long distance calls.

The new system began on Feb 3 and will continue on a progressive basis.

An individual line customer who numbers begins with 635 or 638 will longer need to give the number to an operator when placing a direct dialed long distance call.

New equipment will automatically record the number of the telephone from which the call is placed. The new service will provide a more accurate customer record of long distance called placed, according to B.C. Telephone spokesmen.

A short delay may be experienced after the call has been dialed and before the call is connected.

"Customers are urged not to hang up or call the operator," B.C. Telephone customer service manager Jo Dunn said. "The call is being completed during this short delay."

Police Report

Terrace RCMP are investigating two break and enter reports which occurred Thursday night.

At about 9 p.m., a person or persons entered a house at 3882 Hagen Drive after smashing a rear window.

The only items missing were five or six bottles of wine.

No one was home at the time of the break-in.

At about 10 p.m. the same night police received a report that Northern Scrap Metal at 4617 Lakelse was broken into.

The building was entered after the culprits climbed onto a nearby roof.

Nothing was missing and nothing was damaged in this incident.

Police continue to investigate both break-ins.

Friday night the RCMP of Terrace detachment reported two breaking and entering incidents. The first involved a break-in at the Finning Tractor premises. One juvenile was apprehended and taken into custody. The second incident was at the B & E grocery. No one was apprehended but the stolen goods were recovered.

Police said, despite very slippery and dangerous driving conditions, traffic accidents were very minor.

Saturday, the RCMP said, was free of incident almost entirely.

Hostage Taking Ends

NEW WESTMINSTER, B.C. (CP) — The week-long hostagetaking at the troubled British Columbia Penitentiary concluded peacefully Saturday but police credited a fast-acting guard with preventing more violence.

RCMP Superintendent Bruce Northrop, one of the chief negotiators, said he was pleased the incident involving five prisoners and 13 hostages ended without bloodshed. He credited a team effort by RCMP, city police, prison warden Herb Reynett and his Canadian Penitentiary Service staff.

In particular, he said if it hadn't been for an unnamed member of the penitentiary staff & those inmates would have been on the street.

"Although it was a highly-volatile incident for us for many days I don't know what the consequences would have been had it been out on the street in less controlled conditions."

The incident began Jan. 28 when five prisoners—Andy Bruce, Steven Albert Hall, Richard Wright, Ralph Saumer and David Bennett—broke through a glass partition in the visiting area near the prison's main entrance and grabbed their hostages, two of whom were fellow prisoners.

Police said it was an escape attempt that failed when a guard locked a door that sealed them in the visitor's area.

CHARGES LAID

When the incident ended Saturday, hostages Betsy Wood, 47, of North Vancouver, and Heather Gay Hoon, 31, of Vancouver were taken into custody and charged with attempted murder and permitting or assisting escape. They are scheduled to appear in provincial court today.

The 150-page report "Evaluation of the Western Spruce Budworm Problem in British Columbia" is the result of a four-month study by a special task force of members of the B.C. Forest Service.

The budworm attacks on Douglas fir cover 600,000 acres, mainly in the Fraser River area from Hope to north of Lillooet. Highlights of the report:

—while trees lose height and diameter growth during each attack of the budworm, mortality is low, less than one percent.

—the adverse effect of the present budworm infestation on the annual allowable cut in the area is "not considered significant."

used to appear in provincial court today.

Guard Roy Yasuda, 32, who was escorting Bruce to the visiting area, was stabbed twice in the throat and twice in the side during the escape bid. He now is in good condition in hospital.

Yasuda, the only casualty in the lengthy incident, suffered a severed jugular vein but managed to get out of the visitor's area under his own power. Police later said he had about 30 seconds to live when a prison nurse reached him to stop the flow of blood.

Soon after the incident began, police discovered a rented car in the parking lot which contained changes of clothing, some food, drugs, and .38-calibre ammunition.

Most of the demands made by the hostagetakers were not made public during the incident.

Once it was over, Northrop showed reporters a hand-written message from Hall who demanded a van and safe access for himself and Bruce to a local airport. The note made no mention of plans after that, but said a gun "will be taped to my hand and to the heads of the two hostages in such a way that, should I be shot, the hostages will die also."

ISSUES ULTIMATUM

Hall had also told police negotiators: "If you want us out of here you'll have to burn us."

Despite the initial threats of violence, police said there had been no evidence of prisoner hostility during the last days of negotiations and there were no indications the hostages had been abused.

B.C. Won't Spray Budworm;

With the decision whether to spray or not to spray in the Maritime provinces making headlines and shaking up politicians, a report just published by the B.C. Forest Service has come up with a forthright evaluation and decision that appears to silence a similar controversy from heating up in British Columbia. One half of all jobs in B.C. are dependent, in one form or another on forest products. This makes the report all the more important in the light of the present economy.

Hon. T.M. Waterland

"When all the factors are considered," says the report, "the budworm damages being incurred are acceptable and the costs of controlling the pest with the preferred insecticide are unacceptable," but adds: "Conclusions were reached on updated information made available during late 1977 for decision-making in 1978. Changing conditions may invalidate them beyond 1978."

The report makes it quite clear that the only known way, at the present, to control the budworm is by chemical spraying. The preferred insecticide is carbaryl, formulated as Sevin 4 Oil and applied from the air at one pound of active ingredient per acre. "Given careful planning, no unacceptable impact is expected (by carbaryl) on the human population or other non-targets of the environment."

An expanded program of research into the budworm problem is recommended and in order to avoid duplication, there should be active support of the newly formed Canada-U.S. Budworm Committee.

The report says research should be undertaken to understand the population dynamics of the budworm, why it erupts and collapses, factors involved in invasion and spread, and the duration of the infestations.

Increased research is required into control methods other than chemical insecticides. The report says: "Viruses, insect growth results in pheromones (sex attractants) appear to offer the best opportunities."

EDITORIAL: What dragons to slay first?

Every person-from adolescence up-is faced with a tricky problem. Briefly stated it is what to pay attention to and what to spend time doing.

For some husbands, the choice and decision making is not difficult. Most wives (do we dare say) have the equivalent of a "Job Jar" waiting for the husband to attend to; mow the lawn, take out the dog, shovel the snow, fix the toilet, washer, T.V., or other appliance, there's the car to be washed and vacuumed; the sticky drawer to be freed; leaky faucet washer to be replaced, take junior to the hockey game-swimming pool or ski hill; drive mother to the senior Citizen's bash; take Betty Anne to the dentist, pick up a half sack of potatoes from Aunt Millie, in exchange for a pile of True Romance magazines. And so-on and on-life is relatively uncomplicated for many males, when it comes to deciding what things to attend to first.

And still-on the domestic front-the female partner usually resolves the problem of what to do first by attending to whatever is giving the pressure. Certain functions-club and other meetings-are dealt with as the meeting date comes up. Birthdays and anniversaries are pre-empted routine matters demanding a regular slice of our time. Church, lodges, social engagements-the same.

For the families who are sports enthusiasts-the demands are almost endless-if they are participants-there are the endless trips to the rink, the pool, the court, the track or the gym for practice upon practice. (Any morning at 7 a.m., while it is still dark, joggers can be seen in their track or jogging suits running silently along the sidewalks in the heart of town.) As well as the practice and rehearsals, there are the actual meets, or games-all heavy time consumers. For the musicians-the same applies with instrument practice, orchestra rehearsals and music festivals. All well and good.

But when it comes to social injustices-ah! There's the rub.

The increase in "hard crime among our young people. Leave that to the police-that's what we pay them for? The high rate of unemployment; the increasingly worsening economic plight of our community. Leave that to the politicians-that's what we elected them for?

The dirty, filthy condition of out streets and sidewalks and some premises-where it is not unusual to have to beware of jagged broken bottles, on the sidewalk, and vomit left on the sidewalk entrances to hotels and worse. Leave that to the City Council-that's what we elect them to look after?

The many genuinely poor people who are finding it increasingly difficult to survive on welfare-yet unable for honest reasons, to obtain a subsistence income-who are suffering in Terrace and are at their wits end? There must be appropriate agencies to look after their problems. A person can always find work if he's not too lazy or too proud, or will take what he can get?

It's always easier to sit back and watch a hockey game on T.V. than it is to "stick our neck out" and fight for and work for needed changes in our community.

It's much simpler to gripe and complain about "crooked politicians" and the country "going to the dogs" or "going to Hell" than getting involved, and actually taking on a volunteer job to help improve matters.

Canada is in danger of splitting apart. (Let Quebec go if it wants to? We'd be better off without those so-and-so's anyhow?) Our unemployment figures are a national disgrace. (There's nothing I can do about it?) Canada is being swamped by foreign trade from countries prepared to work harder, more efficiently, and for smaller profits. (Why should we compete with "coolie" labour?)

No. The way we are dividing our time is not good enough. Watching is not doing. Viewing a game is not playing it. We are going to have to get involved.

But first-we're going to have to decide what the real issues are. Then-to give up some of our comfort and luxuries to attend to them.

OTTAWA OFFBEAT

by Richard Jackson

Ottawa-Parliament leads, right?

Right!
Inot, itself, practising what it preaches for others—including you, Mr. Taxpayer—restraint. Back in 1950—not exactly prehistoric times, being little more than 25 years ago—it was costing you a now incredible annual $3.8 million to run Parliament.

Who says?
The Finance Department's Estimates—the well-known authoritative Blue Book of national accounts—has it down there on the record.

This same Blue Book, current issue puts the cost of Parliament at $78.7 million.
Up from $3.8 million in 1950.

Even the Arabian Knight of OPEC with their oil prices are pikers in cost increases against competition like that.

Back when you were getting basically the same parliamentary services for the $3.8 million pittance; MPs were drawing an annual $6,000 with a few fringe benefits and nothing tax-free. No hardship though.

It was an "honor" then to serve in Parliament, not the "Full-time job"—minus two summer months, three to four weeks at Christmas and two weeks at Easter—its Honorable Members insist on telling you it is.

From $6,000 to a new current peak of $38,7000, $12,000 of it tax-free, a built-in annual raise, fringe benefits beyond contemporary comparison, and a pension indexed to the cost of living has made it a way of life. A good life.

But just a bit more of the financial record.
Liberal Prime Minister Louis St. Laurent was in charge when the pay was $6,000 and the cost of Parliament only $3.8 million.

He held a hard line and Parliament was costing just over $8 million when John Diefenbaker and his Conservatives took over in 1957.

An MP then shared a single office with another MP. Each had a secretary.

Lester Pearson returned the Liberals to power in 1963, bumped the pay to $18,000 plus tax-free expenses and introduced those ever-loving perks and privileges of office.

Off went the roof.
And when Pierre Trudeau came to office, the bill, then at $20 million, zoomed in a year to $26 million.

Then in two more years, to $35 million.
It had touched $40 million by 1975.

And now at $78.7 million in one the launch-pad for the built-in, automatic early increase, accepted by the Honorable members with hardly a murmur and by the paying public with scarcely a protest.

The automatic increase—geared to the national wage and salary index—was Parliament's canny response to public uproar two years ago over it legislated pay rise.

The Honorable members at that time sneaked it in when the Prime Minister and the 10 provincial premiers were monopolizing the headlines prime TV and radio news time.

They rushed it through all three readings in the Commons and cutting the Senate in on a good thing had not trouble with the Gentlemen of the Upper Chamber.

Foxily they did all this just a year after the last election and less than four years from the next, hoping with good reason that the public forgets, if not forgives, quickly.

But try to remember when you vote again this year...

An not to forget that Parliament seldom, if ever shows such speed doing your business, as it does in watching its own welfare.

Man angry because Doctors saved him

VANCOUVER (CP) — Two weeks ago, George Joseph McFall was sentenced to 18 months in prison for trafficking in marijuana. But in September 1976, McFall sentenced himself to a life of imprisonment of a different kind.

With only three months flying experience, McFall landed his new plane on a field near Cranbrook, B.C., then attempted a dangerous short takeoff to clear the surrounding mountains. He didn't make it.

The result—a broken neck and paralysis from the armpits down.

"This is more painful than being dead," said 37-year-old McFall, who says he will never thank the doctors who saved his life. "It's a disgusting way to exist."

Having turned out on that, he missed to the modern equivalent—marijuana smuggling. He says he enjoyed it immensely.

Waiting on a deserted Mexican road with two native accomplices for a plane to fly a dope shipment to Canada, McFall was surprised by United States Treasury officers who charged with machineguns blazing.

Although his partners were killed, McFall said he escaped into the forest with only a bullet hole in his pant leg.

"I hid out for seven hours in the jungle... they were strafing the bushes... it was one of the most frightening experiences," he said.

McFall began his adventurous life in a most unlikely way—selling insurance, and moved on to selling funerals, in advance, to prairie farmers.

TOP SALESMAN
"I was the top salesman in Western Canada," he said. "I drove Cadillacs when I was 22.

"I made it in the straight world."

After that, he moved to Vancouver and opened pornographic bookstores and a restaurant, but he said he craved action and danger.

Since his accident, however, McFall says "my greatest thrill is taking a bath."

McFall is comfortable in Oakalla Regional Correctional Centre in nearby Burnaby and guards say he's easy to get along with.

But, although he's bedridden, McFall's philosophy hasn't changed.

"I've always been a hustler."

He says his latest scheme is to market a waterbed he's designed that makes it easier for crippled patients to enter from their wheelchairs.

Sweden leads aerosol ban

By VINCENT BUIST
STOCKHOLM (Reuters) — Sweden has become the first country in the world to enact legislation against most aerosol sprays on the ground that they may harm the planet's atmosphere.

The ban, which takes effect Jan. 1, 1979, covers the thousands of hair sprays, deodorants, air fresheners, insecticides, paints, waxes and assorted sprays which use the freon gases (chlorofluorocarbons) as a propellant. It does not apply to certain medical sprays, especially those used by asthma sufferers.

The Swedes, who operate one of the world's most active environmental protection departments, are taking seriously warnings by some scientists that continued release of these chemicals may eventually degrade the earth's ozone layer.

This layer, composed of oxygen molecules containing three atoms instead of the usual two, encircles the globe in the stratosphere some 20 kilometres up, protecting earth from most of the sun's ultraviolet radiation.

Editor's Note:
Publication of a letter in the Letters To The Editor column of this newspaper does not mean that either the publishers, not the editor or staff responsibility for the. The Letters columns are provided as a needed public service, wholly without charge, to enable persons of all walks of life, all racial and religious backgrounds and levels of education to express their own personal convictions. We should remind all letter writers that publication of their letters in this newspaper does not absolve them from legal action if they are libellous, slanderous or fraudulent, and would ask them to keep their language within the bounds of decency if they wish to have their letters published. The editor reserves the right to edit for purposes of brevity and good taste, and the right to refuse publication of any letter that, in his opinion, are not fit to print. This right, however, will only be exercised after careful consideration, and only with regret, when it appears there is no alternative.

There is concern that a thinning of this layer would let through more radiation and increase the incidence of skin cancer among whites. It might eventually cause the planet to warm up, melting the icecaps and flooding coastal cities.

SETTING EXAMPLE
Sweden, which uses only one per cent of the freons made in the world, obviously is not going to halt the threat single-handed, but it does believe in setting an example.

"We have done it to give a lead, to draw attention to the problem and because we think someone has to start drawing the line," an ecologist said. "After all, aerosols are not essential to man's comfort. There are substitutes."

Sweden is basing its legislation on data produced by the United States National Academy of Sciences. The U.S. has by far the highest consumption of aerosol products.

It remains by no means clear to what extent these propellants do react with ozone, as no one is sure to what extent laboratory experiments mimic the mechanics of the upper atmosphere.

The giant U.S. firms manufacturing the sprays say the dangers are exaggerated and further study is required before products are banned.

POWERS EXTENSIVE
Sweden, with its powerful environmental lobby, a national environmental protection board with broad powers and a tough 1975 act on products hazardous to man, can cancel a manufacturer's licence to sell a product on the merest suspicion of a danger.

On the freon front, the year's grace has been granted to allow manufacturers to run down supplies.

The freon used as a coolant in refrigerators and air conditioners, not normally released into the atmosphere, is not affected.

Sweden has a bilateral environmental agreement with the Soviet Union, but Swedish officials have received no information on what Soviet policy toward aerosols is going to be.

European Common Market has shown some interest in banning sprays, but is awaiting more scientific data.

Gr.11 Kids Find Out

Does oil kill fish? Do we want Pipeline?

By Corinna Morhart

Will fish live in water coated with crude oil? Mr. Cyril Shelford, Skeena, M.L.A., stated that the poison contained in crude oil would not kill fish. In order to see if this was true, our social students 11 class (with the help of Mr. Shelford and Imperial Oil) obtained some Alberta crude. We set up two fish tanks and allowed the water to reach room temperature. Then to both tanks we added two goldfish. After a few days, we added two ounces of Alberta crude to one tank. To our surprise, the fish in the oil lived through the 72-hour period in which the oil's poisons should have been present in the water. The fish in the non-oil tank died. This would suggest that the crude oil toxin will not kill fish. Next term we hope to test our findings more thoroughly.

Kevin Irwin adds crude oil to aquarium containing goldfish.

The Caledonia Senior Secondary's Grade 11 class did a report and survey on the Kitimat to Edmonton pipeline. The guest speakers and their comments are as follows:

Mrs. Lil Farkvam is concerned about Terrace and Kitimat environment area if the pipeline goes ahead. Her main concern is that if there were a breakage in the pipeline that runs close to Highway 25 and the Kitimat River a lot of danger lies ahead for our surrounding waters and for outdoor recreation along this route.

Mr. Richard Green is a member of the Chamber of Commerce which is in favour of the pipeline, provided it is safely installed. He claim 200-300 jobs for unloading the tankers at Kitimat and that the pipeline would not go through if it was not safe. There would be some hazards, even if the pipeline was put in properly.

Mr. Cyril Shelford (M.L.A. for Skeena Riding) said "Anywhere you live energy should cost the same". Buy this statement he meant that the northern costs for all energy should be the same as down south. His opinion concerning the environment waters is that oil will not kill fish. If the pipeline does come in, we should get some benefits for the risks we're taking. We, the Canadians, should get a certain amount of money for each barrel of oil coming in.

Dr. Counts (An environmentalist) stated that most of the environmental danger is expected to be at the port where tankers unload. If a spill did occur, all or most of the fish would die. The pipeline won't hopeful go through because of the amount of opposition posed by the people.

The Telkwa Foundation said that 951 of the sea animals are likely to be affected by oil spills. Toney Pierce, who is one of the members of the Telkwa Foundation, states, "Crude oil has 300 different types of hydro carbons one of which is 2-4-benzopyrene. This is the only compound they know that would affect the skin. It is possible to join a pipeline from Valdez across northern B.C. and into Edmonton, but it would cost $2.00 per barrel, but from Valdez to Kitimat by tankers then by pipe to Edmonton will cost the Americans 81c per barrel.

In order to see how the local community felt about the possibility of an oil pipeline, we conducted survey and found the following:

In volleyball only one Terrace-Kitimat area team finished in the medals—those were the senior boys of Kitimat they defeated Ft. St. John late Saturday night to win the gold medal, in that category for volleyball.

In soccer action it was not a good year for Kitimat teams. Senior boys were eliminated early Saturday. Girls' under 19 lost their fourth straight game Saturday night to bow out of the competition. Also Saturday night the men lost two to one to Croatia.

of Prince George and were eliminated.

Archery was a lot kinder to Kitimat. Competitors, Kitimat picked up three silver medals in archery this year. Phil Hodgkott in junior freestyle, Philio March, in junior bare bow, and don Ferguson for the male freestyle were the silver medalists.

Steelhead Society Suspicious

The following is a copy of a letter by John Counts, secretary of the Terrace based Northwest Chapter of the Steelhead Society of B.C. The letter is in reply to one recently published in this paper by the Energy Minister to MP Iona Campagnolo, regarding the Thompson enquiry on the environmental impact of a proposed Kitimat-Edmonton oil pipeline.

Reply To:
Northwest Chapter
444 N. Sparks
Terrace, B.C. V8G 2W5

February 1, 1978.

Hon. Len Marchand
Environment Minister
Parliament Buildings
Ottawa, Ontario

Dear sir:

It is time for an immediate resumption of the Thompson Oil Ports Inquiry in order to facilitate proper public input and study of the immense environmental impact of the proposed superport at Kitimat, B.C. There is a growing suspicion among knowledgeable people in our area that the federal government has given the green light to the rejuvenated K.P.L. proposal without fully considering the environmental and political risks which should be sufficient to veto consideration of an oil port on the north coast.

Certain members of the cabinet have stated that the Thompson hearings have already developed adequate information on the marine aspects of a Kitimat oil terminal and that further hearings are not needed — most concerned people here recognize these statements as pure baloney. I am sure you are aware of the fact that no formal hearings have been held on the devastating environmental and fisheries impact of the K.P.L. proposal. These crucial areas of investigation are outside of the National Energy Board jurisdiction and deserve urgent formal hearings. From our standpoint, these considerations are far more important than determinations of oil supply and demand by the N.E.B., an agency viewed as a puppet of U.S. dominated oil trusts.

Premature termination of the Thompson Inquiry has left us in the untenable position of being denied expression of our views through local community hearings in the communities most effected by the Kitimat oil port proposal. Thus, areas such as Sooke and other communities hundreds of miles removed from the area of greatest environmental impact have had their hearings and we have not! We appeal to your sense of natural justice in asking for restoration of community hearings in Northwestern B.C.

Establishment of a new process of environmental inquiry is necessary because of massive loopholes in Canada's laws which allow approval of high impact developments before overriding environmental guidelines are set. Thus, we perceive the spectacle of SOHIO's oil port in Long Beach, California being rejected a priori because of massive air pollution while equivalent air pollution problems at Kitimat are virtually ignored. Until the government establishes an Environmental Review Board equivalent in power to the National Energy Board, we shall continue to suffer from lack of sensitivity expressed by that agency. In the interim, we shall need Berger — like inquiries to fill the breach.

Finally, loss of coastal shipping subsidies and the expected cession of fishing rights in Hecate Strait have caused many people here to lose confidence in the present government; an obvious step to help restore that confidence is to immediately reconvene the Thompson Inquiry.

Sincerely,
Jon C. Counts
Secretary
Northwest Chapter of the Steelhead Society of B.C.

Mike Ford followed Peacock with three goals, Tom Farrow added one goal backed up by two assists. Lynn Krading followed with a single goal. ## Malaysia Has its Logging Problems Too

By HARI S. MANIAM
KUALA LUMPUR
(AP) — At any cocktail party, social gathering or private chat in the Malaysian capital, the "rape of Endau-Rompin" is becoming a major topic for discussion.

The usually tame press has come out with editorials urging the government to stop the Endau-Rompin and other similar "rapes."

The cause of the uproar is the logging of a 1,400-year-old forest area, which is endangering rare wildlife, including the Sumatran rhinoceros.

It is also threatening the Endau-Rompin National Forest and Park area—about 100 miles southeast of Kuala Lumpur—covers about a half-million acres. Of this only about one-third is in Pahang. Logging 30,000 acres in Pahang will not affect the ecology.

But the protesters say if it is not stopped at the beginning it will continue. Federal officials said the Pahang state government dared not stop the logging as the concession licence had been given to Pahang state royal family members.

STATE RESPONSIBLE
They added that the federal government cannot act directly to stop the logging or concession licences because land matters in Malaysia come under state jurisdiction.

"The loggers are so scared the logging will be stopped that they are logging day and night," said a newspaper editor.

"About 1,000 acres is being cleared every week."

The logging contractors have paid the concession holders about $2 million.

In return they will gross about $9 million from the 10,000 acres. Gross receipts will be about $27 million when the entire area is logged. The Pahang state government will get about $2.8 million.

Forest department officials said the whole country is losing its forest resources and reforestation is almost nil. Deputy Prime Minister Mahathir Mohammed said the forest resources would be depleted at the current rate of exploitation. From being a net exporter of timber to the United States, Japan, South Korea and the European economic community, Malaysia would not be able to meet even local demands by 1990.

Empty seats in the arena during the minor complaints about the lack of spectator support hockey event last week would seem to heat out some of our younger teams are suffering.

AMOS, Que. (CP) — Steve Ducat's Montreal Caledonia rink defeated Ron Patton of Glenmore Curling Club 8-4 Saturday to win the Quebec provincial men's curling championship in two straight matches.

Ducat—with third Carl Murovic, second Glen Aldridge and lead Malcolm Turner—will represent Quebec in the Canadian curling championships at Vancouver starting March 5.

Reigning Canadian champion Jio Ursel of St. Laurent, Que., lost in round-robin play and failed to qualify for the finals.

SALT LAKE CITY (AP)

Laboratory studies of specimens from rock singer Elvis Presley's body show that 11 drugs—all consistent with medical treatment—were present in his system at the time of his death, the Salt Lake City Tribune reported.

Dr. Bryan Finkle, director of the Centre for Human Toxicology at the University of Utah, was quoted in Sunday's newspaper as saying: "We have not detected any drug in Elvis that doesn't have a medical rationale to it—only agents prescribed for perfectly normal, rational medical reasons." Finkle said Presley had not been drinking prior to his death.

13. PERSONAL

WHO WILL HELP THE GOLDEN RULE?
Can anyone suggest a way to impress the governments in Victoria and Ottawa with the proven worth of this non profit employment agency? Six and a half years of getting people to work must have saved the respective governments many dollars. Ottawa says that the Golden Rule does not fit into any category. Maybe we need a new category? One where people can help people without snarling them up with miles of red tape and mountains of forms. The Golden Rule works with simple records, plain office, second hand equipment and plain common sense. People are treated like human beings. No frills, no lies and all at the small price of $1,000 a month total.
Any suggestions would be greatly appreciated. Please phone 635-4535 in business hours or drop in at 3238 Kalum Street No.2. Terrace, B.C. V8G 2N4.

Your Individual Horoscope

Frances Drake

FOR TUESDAY, FEBRUARY 7, 1978

What kind of day will tomorrow be? To find out what the stars say, read the forecast given for your birth sign.

ARIES
 (Mar. 21 to Apr. 20)

Slow down to gather forces
 more compactly, to conduct activities more adroitly. Don't deviate from a pre-planned schedule for no good reason.

TAURUS
 (Apr. 21 to May 21)

This should be a stimulating day, but there are two admonitions: Don't take on more than is reasonable and don't scatter energies — both tendencies now.

GEMINI
 (May 22 to June 21)

A clever beginning will cover half your distance. Follow up pending projects with intensified steps and, all along the way, pinpoint your next moves.

CANCER
 (June 22 to July 23)

Some unexpected situations possible, so be alert. Take time to think over all the angles;
 then, in your usual competent manner, set out to correct
 what's undesirable.

LEO
 (July 24 to Aug. 23)

Even small opportunities can lead to worthwhile advancement, so don't by-pass
 ANY avenue toward further progress.

VIRGO
 (Aug. 24 to Sept. 23)

Get facts and figures straight before attempting new undertakings. Don't stretch your budget too far, but do not hesitate to spend a bit in a truly sound venture.

LIBRA
 (Sept. 24 to Oct. 23)

Be alert now. A thoughtless move could have more repercussions than you could possibly imagine. Emphasize your steadfastness, practicality.

SCORPIO
 (Oct. 24 to Nov. 23)

Face up to opposition but do not let it incite you to useless argument or irritability — with little accomplished constructively.

SAGITTARIUS
 (Nov. 24 to Dec. 21)

Handling your own or others' affairs may bring new or increased problems. Be ready for changes. Don't make unnecessary ones yourself, but do accept others which seem desirable.

CAPRICORN
 (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20)

Your ambitions in high gear
 now — even more so than usual.
 But harness your energies and direct them only into worthwhile channels.

AQUARIUS
 (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19)

Accent is on your love life. If single, the time has come to make up your mind about a current romance.

PISCES
 (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20)

Certain misleading influences call for special astuteness. Be on the alert for persons who are unreliable or impractical — and avoid.

YOU BORN TODAY are endowed with many talents which should lead to a happy and successful life, but how you use them will tell the big story.

Once the Aquarian learns self-mastery and composure, he can reach more than one noteworthy pinnacle of achievement. You have a fine spirit of enterprise and are full of enthusiasm about all your undertakings; would make an excellent writer, painter or editor. Birthdate of: Sinclair

Canada seeks new export fish sales

OTTAWA (CP) — Fish exporting companies and trade department officials are stepping up their efforts to find new overseas markets for fish products.

The companies are in the final stages of creating the Canadian Association of Fish Exporters (CAFE), Ken Campbell, manager of the Fisheries Council, said this week.

The trade department is in the process of designating fish attaches for Japan and European countries, Bob Merner, head of the department's fish division, said in an interview.

Merner said that fisheries exports is one of the few growth industries in Canada and "the demand for fish products is strong."

But fish markets go in six-year cycles and "we need to put things into place now to avoid the sort of problems which have hit the industry in the past," Merner said. The way to do it is to create permanent markets for Canadian products.

EXPORT FIRMS JOIN

Campbell said that the couple of hundred exporting companies now are joining CAFE, which will be a sister organization to the Fisheries Council. The association should be formally launched in a month or two.

Fisheries department officials say the exporters are taking on a big job in trying to consolidate their marketing efforts and it's likely small companies, which export highly-processed products, won't join.

It will take at least a year to tell whether the association will be able to survive internationally but it won't be for a lack of help from the trade department, one fisheries official said.

CAFE is expected to supply the Canadian companies with constant reliable information on markets and prices. Because the association will be able to get products from the member companies, "the volume will hopefully create a continuity of supply" needed for major contracts, especially with the state trading companies of Eastern Europe and the Soviet Union.

Big plans for Stanley Park

People will be able to stroll through Canada in less than a day without leaving Stanley Park in Vancouver, says the organizers of Canada Week, June 25 to July 1.

"We're dividing the park into regions and inviting the public to walk through them," Norma Sharp, British Columbia Canada Week committee chairman, said Friday during a meeting of the national Canada Week committee.

Exactly what the committee is doing, such as how the park will be divided the cost and the actual date of the event, are still in the planning stages.

Sharp expects 100,000 to 150,000 people to attend, based on the popularity of last year's Canada Get-Together at Brockton Point.

"Last year we found people really wanted something like that," she said.

Sharp is worried about the amount of apathy in B.C. towards Canadian unity, but "I think we can overcome this apathy... people are becoming aware that we have to devote ourselves to the concept of one Canada."

The Canada Week committee is sponsored by the Council for Canadian Unity which was founded by 30 English and 30 French Canadians in 1944. Barry Jones, national publicity chairman, said about $2.6 million will be spent on Canada Week activities across the country, with most of the money being given to the more than 1,000 communities participating.

Both organizations are volunteer.

Chad Bark, National Canada Week chairman, says people have been more interested in council and committee activities since the November, 1976, Parti Quebecois victory in Quebec and the subsequent debate about national unity and separatism.

"It's really moved from an apple pie and ice cream issue to a meat and potatoes issue," he said.

Chronically ill must pay bills? Health Minister hasn't seen letter

Health Minister Bob McClelland said Friday he has not seen a letter written by a member of his department ordering chronically ill patients in acute care hospitals to pay their own bills.

McClelland also said the estimated price of up to $165 a day it would cost patients who stay in hospital once acute care is no longer required was not correct, but did not elaborate.

"I do not wish to comment on this until I have seen the letter," McClelland said in a telephone interview from Prince George, B.C., where he was meeting with local doctors to discuss a possible new hospital facility there.

The letter to the hospitals was dated Jan. 25 over the signature of Dr. David Longridge, medical consultant to British Columbia Hospital Programs.

"To avoid misunderstandings we suggest that patients' relatives or friends should be immediately notified by you in writing that coverage is being terminated," the letter said.

"They should be notified that the patient will be personally responsible for payment of the full per diem rate once our coverage has been withdrawn."

LETTERS SENT

A Vancouver General Hospital spokesman said letters have already gone to relatives, friends and family doctors of 15 patients under B.C. Hospital Programs.

Patients originally admitted for acute care—such as a fracture—whose doctors have ruled that they no longer require acute care are affected by the ruling.

The Vancouver General spokesman said the hospital normally has 100 to 200 persons in acute-care beds awaiting assignment to a long term care facility. There are three or four cases added to the list each day, and it is these who are being told they have to leave, she said.

Isobel Kimmet, executive director of the provincial long-term care program which is responsible for placing patients requiring long term care, said she did not know about the letter.

"I would have thought he (Longridge) might have made some of us aware of what he was going to do," she said in a telephone interview from Prince George.

She said in many communities with limited resources it is not possible to place people within a week.

CAN'T DO QUICKLY

Kimmet said she doubts it will be possible to move people as quickly as is being demanded because "it would have been my assumption that the people wouldn't be in acute care if there was a bed for them."

A lengthy procedure is required to put a person in an extended care bed, he explained. First, the hospital assesses the patient to determine what care he needs, then an application goes to the extended care registry in Victoria, then it comes back to the Vancouver office, which does another assessment, and finally the person goes on a waiting list for a bed.

Waiting lists are commonly three to four months long, McLean said.
